MURDER OF OHIO WOMAN CONFESSED

Killing at Youngstown Admitted by Prisoner in Pennsylvania

TAKEN AFTER SEVERE FIGHT

Mutilated Body of Victim Found in Ravine

PITTSBURG, Pa. — (United Press) — James Avant, a negro of Youngstown, Ohio, arrested near McKees Rocks, near here, today confessed he murdered Mrs. Elizabeth Stille, 33, at Youngstown several weeks ago, according to the police. The mutilated body of the woman was found in a ravine near her home.

Avant was arrested when a pedestrian notified McKees Rocks that a negro had gained entrance to a store in what is known as the bottom.

Police surrounded the store and after a desperate fight subdued and arrested the negro. Avant was lodged in jail on a technical charge.

Chief of Police Rider questioned the negro and after a severe grilling, it is alleged the man broke down and confessed to the murder of Mrs. Stille.

Avant said that on April 9, he went to the Stille home at Youngstown and asked the woman for something to eat, according to Rider. She refused to give him anything to eat. Avant then picked up an iron bar, struck the woman over the head, killing her instantly and disposed of the body by throwing it in a ravine in the rear of the Stille home, police say the man confessed.

Avant said he traveled by night to Steubenville, Ohio, where he obtained new clothing and arrived in Pittsburgh Sunday.

STATE STIRRED BY POLITICAL ROW

Pinchot-Vare Clash Increases Interest in Primary

PHILADELPHIA — (Associated Press) — The withdrawal of his support from Governor Pinchot for one of Pennsylvania's delegates at large to the Republican national convention by Representative William S. Vare, a Republican leader of this city, and the governor's report that the liquor question prompted the congressman's action, have increased interest in tomorrow's primaries.

There is much speculation as to the effect Vare's opposition will have on the governor's candidacy. The congressman announced he would support Ralph Beaver Strassburger, wealthy Norristown publisher, for delegate at large against the governor, who is one of the seven stated candidates of the Republican state organization.

Deciding that liquor or law enforcement is the issue and that the Philadelphia organization is regular when liquor is regular, otherwise not, Governor Pinchot in a statement last night said "the organization stands by its guns and it is possible to finish what it has started."

He said it did not matter whether he was elected a delegate at large or not but that it was of the utmost importance whether the people of Pennsylvania were going "to yield to the little handful of Philadelphia ward politicians who planned this thing."

TWO STABBED AS RESULT OF POLITICAL DISPUTE

BAGDAD — Two deputies known to favor ratification of the treaty between Great Britain and the kingdom of Iraq were stabbed and seriously wounded while in the street yesterday.

The political situation accentuated by the emotionalism connected with the Ramadan festival is rapidly approaching a crisis.

The agitation against ratification of the treaty centers chiefly on the argument that Great Britain, the pact fails to guarantee that the Vilayet of Mosul will not be surrendered to Turkey.

BABY FOUND

CLEVELAND — A baby boy, apparently not more than two hours old, was found by the custodian of St. John's Catholic cathedral on a landing of the stairs inside the entrance last night. It was the second finding of that age abandoned here in the last three weeks. He was taken to a hospital.

PRETTY BOBBED HAired HOLDUP GIRL CAPTURED

Female Bandit, With Husband, Arrested in Florida

WANTED IN NEW YORK CITY

Traced to Jacksonville Thru Birth of Baby

JACKSONVILLE, Fla. — (Associated Press) — Preparing to return to New York this afternoon, in custody of two New York detectives, Edward Cooney, 25, and his wife, Celia Cooney, 20, beautiful bobbed haired holdup woman, today confessed, according to Detective F. S. Gray of New York.

The man was said to have confessed to the majority of the charges filed against the pair and his wife freely talked of the most recent affair, robbery of the National Biscuit Company's plant in Brooklyn, in which one man was seriously injured.

The couple waived extradition and told detectives they would be glad to return to New York and were ready to stand trial.

Two New York detectives broke down the door of their room in a lodging house, only to be confronted with a pistol in the woman's hand and two held by the man, but the girl shouted that they would not fire unless the officers shot and the couple was taken without further trouble.

The girl's hair, naturally blond, had been dyed brunette, the officers said.

BIRTH OF BABY

The couple was traced, the detectives said, thru the birth here April 11, to Mrs. Cooney of a baby which died. The New York bandit woman had been identified as a prospective mother. Cooney is said to have wired his mother for money from here and the telegram was intercepted at New York.

The girl, according to the officers, said Cooney had wanted to shoot her and commit suicide when they were gaining entrance, but that she told him not to fire unless the officers fired.

The couple had booked passage on a steamer, leaving Wednesday for New York. The officers said they would start with their prisoners for New York tonight.

4 KILLED BY WILD RUNNING ENGINE

Driverless Locomotive Sent Careening from Chicago Yards

CHICAGO — (United Press) — A coroner's inquest was held today to place the responsibility for the killing of four persons yesterday by a driverless Baltimore & Ohio freight engine. Somebody turned on the power and sent the engine careening 40 miles an hour, until it crashed into an automobile load of people on the south side grade crossing.

The dead: Otto Bowmark and his wife Olga; Irving, 10-year-old son of the couple; William Lindberg, 37.

Two others in the car were injured.

Police are holding Hosea Little, negro hostler at the B. & O. yards, Max Orr, Elmer Howard, negroes and Peter Cickoki.

Little told police he had cleaned the firebox of the engine and started a new fire a few moments before it was turned loose. He was in a shanty, he said, when the engine was started. Little said he ran out and tried to overtake the engine, but it was going too rapidly. A man in a light tan coat leaped from the engine, just as it gathered high speed. Little told officers The other men were in the yards at the time.

Police do not believe his story. The engine jumped the tracks and crashed into an embankment after hitting the machine.

DEATH AT SCHOOL INVESTIGATED

Man's Body Found in Girls' Dormitory at Chicago

CHICAGO — (United Press) — Walter Krashin, 35, student of teaching at the University of Chicago, committed suicide in the girls' dormitory by slashing his throat with a razor, according to the verdict today of Dr. Joseph Springer, coroner's physician.

Dr. Springer said indications were that Krashin killed himself shortly after midnight last night.

Police are at a loss for a motive. They are hunting for a special delivery letter received from Germany by Krashin, Saturday night. Krashin was from Valparaiso, Ind.

Police also are at a loss for the motive that sent Krashin to the girls' dormitory to commit suicide.

POLICEMAN SLAIN

Three Men Held in Tragedy at Cincinnati

CINCINNATI — (United Press) — Three men are being held here today in connection with the fatal shooting late yesterday of Patrolman William Bond, 56. Bond before he died, identified one of the men, Wesley Beischer, as the man who shot him.

The other three prisoners are Oliver Tabor, and Luther Foley. They say they were attacked by Beischer, and that it was during this altercation that Patrolman Bond came in and was shot.

HERE'S CHANCE TO SAVE TAXES ON $100 PROPERTY

How would it seem to save $100? That is the question asked by R. Phillips, country auditor, in urging taxpayers to list their personal returns.

By filing prior to May 1 the property owner lowers the assessed value of his property a whole cent. That is the amount exempted by law to persons filing an early return.

Assessors are stationed in the court house daily to assist in filing their returns.

SAFE WORKED HERE SUNDAY BY ROBBERS

Brick is Hurl'd Thru Pawnbroker's Window Jewelry Taken

FILLING STATION ENTERED

Police Believe Local People May be Implicated

Yeggs working in Lima business section Sunday night looted a safe of $544.62, smashed a window in a jewelry store and escaped with jewelry valued at $300, totalling $844.62 loot for the night.

Combination on a safe at the Alamo Lubricating station, West and Elm-sts, was worked and $544.62, receipts of two days' business, stolen by the yeggs who left behind a blotch of finger prints on the safe as the only clue for police investigation.

Window in the front of the Philip Kohn Loan Brokerage Co., 106 E. Market-st, was shattered by a brick and entrance gained. Jewelry estimated at $300 was taken by the thieves who are believed to have been frightened away by Officer Earl Good, who discovered the broken window.

An open safe and a raised rear window at the Alamo Lubricating station Monday morning told the story of the robbery. Howard Holt, employee, discovered the theft when he opened the station Monday morning for business.

Police investigation brought an announcement that entrance was gained thru the rear window which was jammed and that the combination on the safe was worked.

"CHILDREN'S DAY" IS PLANNED

Allen-co Child Welfare Association is in Charge Here

The Allen-co Child Welfare association has been asked by the American Child Health association to sponsor the "Children's Day" movement in Allen-co. Mrs. W. E. Bayly, 1707 Lakewood-av, has been named chairman of the newly formed Children's Day committee.

Arrangements are already being made by the committee to observe May 1 as Children's Day in the city and county. The committee will probably seek the cooperation of the different boards of education in the county to further the movement in the schools and it is quite likely that Mayor Mover will be asked to issue a proclamation to the effect that May Day is to be observed as Children's Day in the city. Dr. Josephine Pearce, president of the Allen-co Child Welfare association, said Monday. The Boy Scouts, various women's organizations, the Y. M. C. A., the Y. W. C. A., and similar organizations will be asked to cooperate in the movement, she said.

All village schools which have not closed by May 1 will put on May festivals, and Miss Charlotte Bassett, county health nurse, has been appointed to see that each will put on a health program in conjunction with the festival.

Lancaster, Ohio, has definitely decided to show the way to other cities in the state in the observance of the day. On Friday, May 2, Lancaster schools will combine for a big pageant and May festival. Dr. Josephine Pearce has been asked to act as one of the judges of the event.

CLEVELAND MOTHER HELPS POLICE TRAP HER SON

CLEVELAND — (Fearing he would be shot by the police, a mother late last night helped the officers trap her 19 year old son, wanted for stealing radio sets.

Early today he confessed, the police say to having broken into fifty homes, stealing two dozen radio sets and several suits of clothes since January 22.

SLAYER OF SON SHOT TO DEATH BY FATHER

CHICAGO — A father refused to await the process of law but shot and fatally wounded his son's slayer, John Rose, outside a court room in the county building today.

Half dozen shots rang thru the marble corridors and threw the county courts into a turmoil as Rose dropped. He died in a nearby court room.

Rose was facing trial for murder in connection with a shooting at the Checker Taxicab Company's plant.

A man named Sexton said by the police to be the father of Rose's victim and to have shot Rose, was seized and rushed to a police cell.

Two court rooms stopped their judicial processes as witnesses and others rushed into the corridors at the sound of the shots.

STUDENT MISSING

COLUMBUS — The aid of police has been enlisted in the search for Ross Albaugh, 14, student at May High school, Eureka, Ohio, who disappeared Saturday after the Ohio relays in Ohio stadium.

TWO MEN SHOT

SPEAKER GILLETT DENIES TRUNK OF BOOZE CHARGE

Replies to Testimony Given Before Daugherty Probers

WASHINGTON — (Associated Press) — Speaker Gillett appeared at the Daugherty committee hearing today and questioned H. L. Scaife, committee witness, as to his statement that liquor seized in Washington by prohibition agents, some years ago went to Gillett's office.

"Where did you get your information?" the speaker asked.

"Most of it came from Mr. Woodruff," said Scaife.

"Congressman Woodruff?"

"Yes."

(Representative Woodruff, a Republican, is from Michigan.)

Scaife, a former department of justice investigator, insisted that his original testimony "needed no correction" to his knowledge. He reiterated that his "information" was that the speaker got the liquor for "a constituent."

The witness then turned to the speaker and asked if he "denied that the liquor had gone to his office."

"I certainly do," said Gillett.

"Do you deny that a trunk went there?" Scaife persisted.

Gillett said a constituent's trunk had been taken to his office but that it had no liquor in it.

Speaker Gillett then made a statement to the committee under oath. He said that in the spring of 1922 he had heard and denied the report that a "trunk of liquor" had come to his office.

On investigation, he said, he found that a trunk from which liquor had been removed, had been sent to his office for a constituent in 1919.

This was before the Volstead law, but it was against the law to transport liquor thru "dry territory," the speaker said, adding that his friend who owned the trunk, "a very distinguished citizen of Springfield, Mass." had been bound on a fishing cruise and had "six bottles of liquor in the trunk." It was the breaking of one of these which led to the seizure.

The speaker said he was out of the city at the time and his secretary arranged to obtain the trunk and the liquor, which contained, but not the liquor, and ship it to "Mr. B." in Springfield.

Later he told Representative Woodruff all of these circumstances, he said, and was assured "that Mr. Scaife would not give any more publicity to the matter." It was printed in Springfield, however, added, "substantially as I have told it here."

FORD PARTY PASSES THRU CITY MONDAY

Curves to be Eliminated Here as Soon as Possible, Claim

SPECIAL TRAIN IS USED

South Charleston Ultimate Destination on Inspection Trip

Henry Ford has decided to straighten the line of the D. T. & I. railroad as it passes thru Lima and will also double track the system from River Rouge to South Charleston at least, it was learned Monday coincident with the tour of inspection made along the railroad.

The party, of which it is said Henry Ford was a member, arrived in Lima shortly after noon in a special train. They looked over the track of land held under purchase and option near the intersection of the D. T. & I. and L. E. & W. railways and then passed on to Springfield.

While no definite announcement was made as to Ford's plans for Lima, it was learned from an authoritative source that several curves in the line as it passes thru Lima will be eliminated as soon as possible, perhaps this summer.

Double tracking of the line will also be carried out, advance plans show, and the new line will probably pass east of the present tracks. Whether the new construction will join to the present line north of the city or will parallel it thru the east side residence district is not known.

LAND NEEDED

Laying of a new line thru the city would necessitate the purchase of land and as many homes are already built, it would be necessary to condemn the land. For this reason, it is believed, a new line will not be built thru the city but only where sharp curves are now seen.

The party is understood to have looked over the situation at Columbus Grove where a double S curve is to be eliminated this summer. Property owners are considering fighting the improvement, it is understood, and a new line may be laid out.

No statement was obtained from any members of the party regarding the establishment of shops here. Large yards are to be placed at the junction of the two railroads north-east of the city, it is said, but nothing definite has been arranged regarding the removal of shops here.

Further details regarding the improvement of the D. T. & I. railroad as it passes thru Lima will be released in a few days, it has been learned from persons close to the automobile magnate.

The party is said to plan an investigation of the South Charleston property on this trip. These yards are located near the coal fields and will be quite extensive, reports indicate.

COUNTY TO BUILD LIMA STREETS

Petitions Favorably Received at Hearing Monday

County commissioners will likely grant a petition filed by Central and St. John-av property owners asking for paving of the streets at public expense, it was indicated at a hearing held Monday.

Petitioners, 20 strong, headed by Fire Chief John Mack presented their claims for an appropriation by the commissioners. Paving of the street from Kibby-st to Pine-st it was pointed out, will afford a shorter route for traffic coming into the city from the southeast.

Pine-st, which now carries the traffic, also has a car line on it which in course of time will have to be double tracked. Mack said, as the city is rapidly extending to the south and east.

With Central and St. John-av paved fire trucks can use the street all the year round to reach fires on the south side.

Commissioners Craig and Thompson, who talked to the petitioners, continued the hearing until Saturday, at which time Commissioner Gray will be present.

PUROL CURVE OF PERFORMANCE IN YOUR MOTOR

NOW—save 30% on gasoline!

Gas with tremendous pick-up and power

Here is gasoline that gives efficiency at all points of performance-curve.
No premium in cost. Saves money. Cuts upkeep

[Information Given on Highest Engineering Authority]

KNOW THESE FACTS ABOUT YOUR MOTOR FUEL

Any gasoline will run your motor—after a fashion. But for the pick-up, the acceleration power that takes you away with a roar—for the steady, driving power that carries you up a hill or through bad going—for the economy of real mileage-per-gallon....

Here is gasoline that will give you new motor performance.

And at a yearly saving of 30% on your gasoline costs!

These facts have been proved by two years of research work and record-keeping, under our engineering.

Note the performance-curve

Gasoline is made up of combustible units. Each gallon or quart or drop of it.

The first 10% range of these combustible units is what gives you quick starting.

Then comes the all-important "20% range," as engineers call it. For in this range—up to the 20% mark in your gasoline—you get vigorous, instantly responsive acceleration.

Above that comes the range of combustible units that give you heavy-duty power.

Now look at the performance-curve of PUROL Gasoline—charted from its actual performance in hundreds of motors, in every kind of car.

What engineers have done for you

That curve shows how Purol Combustible Units coincide with the points of highest efficiency on the ideal motor-performance-curve.

Today "P.C.U." (Purol Combustible Units) are a standard by which gasoline may be measured—just as "B.T.U." (British Thermal Units) are a standard measurement of heat values.

Our engineers have spent years in perfecting these specifications of PUROL Gasoline. Now, for the past two years, they have kept careful records of what PUROL Gasoline does—under actual running conditions in a score of different cars.

30% savings possible

The average car consumes 500 gallons of gasoline a year. Over this period of two years, the cost-records for 38 different cars show:

1. That PUROL gives 3.3% greater mileage.
  2. That PUROL burns cleanly—is practically all turned into power—and does not drip down into the crank-case. By actual tests and analyses of crank-case oils this PUROL saving is shown to be 14.2% of gasoline, in a year.
  3. That the saving from this cause amounts to $2.98 a year in lubricating oil cost. (Motor oil diluted by unburned gas drippage must be replaced—because, so thinned-down, it loses efficiency.)
  4. That the saving in general repair costs, by the increased efficiency of lubricating oil, amounts to $10.33 a year.
- On the first two, actual gasoline savings—87½ gallons at 20¢ a gallon—the total is $17.50 a year.
- The four savings totaled shows a yearly saving of $30.81—30% of the annual cost for gasoline in the average motor car!

Always uniform

This substantial economy is possible only because PUROL gasoline is "built" to give efficiency in your motor. Because it is "built" rigidly to the specifications which give that performance-curve shown above.

We are independents in the bitterly competitive oil business. We had to produce quality products to succeed. We have to go right on producing quality products to hold our success.

But fortunately we own our own wells and refineries. We can and do absolutely control all Pure Oil products. We "build" them all to the high standards of quality which have won success for us.

To do it we maintain the strictest refining specifications.

The 5 or 10 gallons of PUROL Gasoline you buy today will perform to the curve charted above—in actual operation of your motor.

A year from today, filling of your tank will give the same performance—will coincide with the curve shown today.

The same gasoline and upkeep savings made possible by PUROL gasoline today will be possible one, two, five years from today.

Because PUROL Gasoline is, and will always be kept uniform—here in your home city, or wherever you happen to buy it.

Make a test today

Fill your tank with PUROL today. If possible drain it clean of the gas you are now using.

Drive for a day or for an hour on PUROL. You will not fail to know that you have tremendous new pick-up and power at your command.

For your convenience we show a list of Pure Oil Service Stations and dealers—where you can get PUROL Gasoline today.

RAIN-SNOW GRIPS LIMA MONDAY

Cold Weather Predicted; Gay Easter Parade Nipped

HEAVY SHOWERS TONIGHT

Winter Fashions Predominate in Church Procession

Rain, snow and colder. That was the program handed out by the weather man for the day after Easter.

Early risers were greeted by a steady downpour of rain. Shortly before 7 a. m. the rain was interspersed with snow and then later in the morning the rain ceased.

While the majority of persons on the street claimed that the temperature was falling, the thermometer at the Solar Refinery showed that it had risen from 39 at 4 a. m. to 45 at noon. A cold wind added to the discomfort.

Cold and cloudy weather with slight rainfalls throughout the morning and increasing lowering of the temperature in the afternoon hours dampened the ardor of Easter promoters and only the bravest of the feminine sex risked their Easter clothes in the annual street fashion display.

Bright sun at 5 a. m. Sunday heightened the hopes of those up at that hour but sudden changes lowered the temperature and cold and cloudy weather followed with a slight rainfall at 9 a. m. and intermittent rainfalls until noon.

Furs and heavy winter coats predominated in the churchgoers' procession instead of the attractive tailored suits and light coats, the vogue of fashion, and the bright colored scarfs attractively displayed and adopted as the smartest in women's fashions.

Clothes contrasted with the day. Had Easter day broke warm and bright, street scenes have radiated with various colored Easter bonnets of brightest hues, with gray, pink and orange predominating, but instead of the somberness of the day was heightened by the dark fur coats, plain sport coats of winter wear and heavy plaids of zero weather for comfort instead of display.

Postponement of the "promenade" is pressed by the weather report which predicts rain for Monday night and Tuesday with a gradual lowering of temperature through Tuesday and Tuesday night.

THAW IS INSANE, SAYS ALIENIST

Witness Put on by Opponents of Millionaire's Release

PHILADELPHIA — (Associated Press) The jury trial to determine the sanity of Harry K. Thaw was resumed today with Dr. C. W. Burr, Philadelphia, an alienist, testifying that Thaw is still insane.

When the case was adjourned Thursday five alienists had testified that the slayer of Stanford White was sane and safe to release from the Pennsylvania hospital for mental and nervous diseases and four others had given it as their opinion that he was insane and would be a menace to the community if released.

Dr. Burr was called to the stand by A. G. Dickson, counsel for the trustees of Thaw's estate, who are opposing Thaw's release. The alienist said he had examined Thaw three times recently at the request of Dickson and without any suggestion as to what was to be expected from him.

"I think Thaw is a case of so-called moral insanity," said Dr. Burr. "He has little or no mental control and is compelled by his condition to follow his impulses. He has not the moral strength to resist vicious impulses."

"Did he talk to you rationally?" asked the court.

"Yes, he conversed rationally except at times there was a slight hesitation in his speech as if he were having difficulty in finding the right word to use."

"Was there any other sign of insanity?" asked the court.

"No, there was not," said Dr. Burr. "I could find no trace of intellectual insanity and could not call him insane except upon the whole history and record of his case."

Mr. Dickson asked "In your opinion has Thaw been fully restored to a sound state of mind?"

"In my judgment, he was not," was the reply. "I believe if he should be liberated and gets away from the custody of the court, he will go back to those habits which have been testified to here. The man would do this inherently. It is not his fault. He cannot help himself."

Dr. Burr believed Thaw could be cured.

Theodore Wiesenburg, Paoli, Pa., neurologist of the Philadelphia General hospital, said he had examined Thaw four times and had come to the conclusion that he is of unsound mind.

The witness agreed with Dr. Burr that if Thaw were released he would return to his old practices.

PNEUMONIA ENDS LIFE OF MISS OCIE SIGAFOOSE, 24

OTTAWA — Miss Ocie Sigafosse, 24, died Saturday at the home of her father, Clyde Sigafosse, at Portage, Pa., of pneumonia and complications. The body was brought here Monday to the funeral home where it will be held Tuesday. Burial in Harmon cemetery near Gileboa.

MUTINY ABOARD SHIP

BOSTON — Because of a mutiny aboard the British steamer Newton Bay loaded with alcohol, her captain has sent a message asking for aid. When the message was sent the steamer was 21 a gale, 65 miles off the coast. The crew was in iron bands, having mutinied when demands for a pay increase of $10 a month was refused. The Newton Bay, 740 tons, was noted in rum row about three months ago.

NEARS COMPLETION

The new generating station of the Ohio Power Co. being erected at Philo, on the Muskingum river, is rapidly nearing completion as the picture shows.

PLANT IS NEARLY COMPLETED

Philo Power Project Expected to be Ready in August

Progress in the construction of the new generating plant of the Ohio Power Co. at Philo, is progressing at such a rate that it is expected that the first units will be completed by August 1, local officials of the company have announced it will generate 350,000 horsepower.

This generating plant is located near a plentiful supply of coal and current will be transmitted to cities in the eastern part of the state and to Lima by means of high tension power lines. One direct line between Philo and Lima will be constructed.

Construction of the power line between Lima and Fostoria is practically completed and the few additional towers to be erected will be set in a very short time, Manager Harry Sterling has announced.

Tests of the St. Marys power plant, conducted during the latter part of last week, were partially successful. One of the tests will probably be made again, R. A. Heitbrink, assistant manager, announced.

ADVISORY COMMITTEE OF SCHOOLS IS NAMED

Simple Phosphate Real Builder of Strength and Nerve Force, Says New York Physician

"Common sense as well as experience should teach those who suffer from nervousness and weakness that the most logical thing to do is to put into their systems the substance that is lacking, and that is pure organic phosphate," says Dr. Joseph Harrison.

Any good druggist can supply genuine Bitro-Phosphate at reasonable cost.

BANK IS ROBBED

Bandits Get $10,000 in Holdup in Louisiana

OMAHA, Neb. — (United Press) — Four bandits today entered a bank at Wall Lake, a, looted the cashier and two clerks in a vault and escaped with $10,000 in cash, according to a telephone call to Omaha police. Nine customers who entered the bank while the bandits were at work, were forced to enter the vault.

Telephone and telegraph lines to Wall Lake were reorted out of order and it is believed the bandits cut all communications before the robbery.

Sunday was "red letter" day at Grand-av M. E. church. The goal of 175 people for Sunday school was reached. Thirty-two women attended the women's Bible class and 42 men attended the Men's Bible class. The church will begin its revival campaign May 1, Rev. A. Thomas announced Monday. Rev. F. B. Osborne, pastor-evangelist, will have charge, with Rev. Samuel Paulding and Rev. Thomas, pastors of the church, assisting.

CHURCH RAISES $3,000 TO PAY OFF BUILDING DEBT

South Side Church of Christ went over the top in its drive to eliminate the church debt when more than $3,000 was raised. The money will be used to clear all the debts of the church and the expense of the evangelistic campaign.

One hundred and sixteen persons have joined the church as the result of a series of evangelistic services.

A sunrise prayer meeting was held at 6 a. m. with more than 125 people present. Breakfast was served after the meeting by the Christian Endeavor society of the church. Nearly 1,000 people attended the Bible school in the morning.

Dr. Stewart and James Keves, who are conducting the revival campaign at the church, will close their series of meetings Tuesday night. Services will also be held Monday night. The largest crowd of people that has ever packed the church is expected at the farewell meeting.

200 KNIGHTS TEMPLARS GO TO WAPAKONETA SERVICES

About 200 Knights Templars from Lima journeyed in two special cars to Wapakoneta Sunday afternoon where they attended the annual Easter church services for knights of the Lima district. Rev. W. T. Williams, of Wapakoneta, had charge of the services which began at 2:30 p. m. Members of the Wapakoneta order gave a reception for the Lima commandery in their new club rooms Sunday evening.

BONUS BILL MAY PASS TODAY

Insurance Measure Expected to be Put Thru Senate

WASHINGTON — (United Press) — Silence of President Coolidge has killed the cash soldier bonus, even tho a majority in the senate favors it.

Just a word from him could revive it, but his closest friends have assurances today that he would not speak that word.

As a result war veterans probably will get a 20 year endowment insurance valued up to $500 depending on the length of service.

The bill embodying this plan will probably be passed by the senate late today or tomorrow. It will be written in almost the same form as that adopted by the house.

If President Coolidge chooses to veto it, as expected, bonus adherents say they will shoot it thru over his objections.

Democrats have tacitly decided to drop their cash option plan which would have enabled soldiers to choose between an insurance policy or cash. It is now before the senate but it will not be pressed unless unforeseen developments occur.

ENLARGING TUBERCULOSIS HOSPITAL

Tag sales in Lima Saturday were most gratifying and the women who handled this affair despite the inclement weather are to be complimented. The undertaking is worthy in every respect and, as usual, Lima folk displayed their generosity.

The proposition now is made to enlarge the hospital, a district affair, in order that all those suffering from this dread disease may be able to get the proper care. There are a number of cases in the county and district which should be in a tuberculosis hospital but admission to the local institution is impossible because of lack of space.

The proposal of the women who have done so much for this hospital should be heeded. If there is any place where money can be used to a good advantage, it is in the fight against the White Plague. We should never overlook an opportunity to hit this disease a blow for it is only thru constant hammering can we keep it down. Much headway has been made, but much remains to be done.

The five counties supporting the hospital are fully able financially to erect and support a hospital adequate to accommodate all patients who should be cared for in an institution equipped to treat them in the most scientific manner. If the present hospital is not large enough, and it is known that it is not, then the various counties should begin plans for enlarging it.

HINT ON GETTING RICH

The easiest way to get rich is to supply a necessity or provide entertainment for the public.

When you are selling something people have to have, you escape the terrific task of educating the public to use a new device. The public, as a result of having been bunked many times, is naturally suspicious of the new. For instance, it required an immense amount of educational advertising to induce people to buy the first breakfast food.

The auto has come into popularity in a matter of 20 years. You probably recall how suspicious and skeptical people were when the first "horseless carriages" were put on the market. And the auto would not be widely used today if it were not for the infinite patience and effort and advertising campaigns of the makers.

All this preliminary educational campaign is avoided when you sell a simple necessity that people already know about and have to have.

Of course, if you go into business for yourself and sell a common necessity, you find you have tremendous competition. The idea of supplying necessities, to escape educating the public, is so obvious that it has occurred to others. So margins of profits are apt to be slender as the fight for business wages.

But dealing in a necessity means quick sales and rapid turnover of stock. Unlike sitting around for years waiting for the public to get educated to the point of losing its suspicions and taking a chance on trying out a new device or service.

When people buy necessities, they squabble over pennies. When they buy entertainment or anything else that isn't actually necessary, they literally throw their money away.

For instance, a man will walk several blocks to save a couple of cents on a pound of butter or a dozen of eggs. Then he turns around and pays half a dollar to see a show that perhaps isn't worth 10 cents. Does he raise a fuss because he didn't get his money's worth? No. His kick is a grumble at the show itself, not at the price.

In spending for pleasure, the public is prodigal. In spending for necessities, the public is a miser.

If you want a chance to make money easily, go where people are spending for pleasure.

TIME IS MONEY NOW

Old documents are found, dealing with the famous banquet given to Charles Dickens by newspapermen. That was in 1868, and Delmonico charged $15 a plate, fabulous price for those days.

The records show that Dickens talked himself hoarse and that 14 long speeches were delivered by editors. Their oratory resembled their editorials.

Brevity is the rule today. More than ever before, people recognize that time is money—or imagine it is. We may have all eternity ahead of us, but deliver us from 15 long speeches at one banquet. People formerly could stand it, liquor being available.

FINANCES ESSENTIAL

Gary, the steel king, is back from a three-months' trip thru South America. He predicts a tremendous future for the southern continent, but says its growth will be slow because it is handicapped by lack of capital to develop natural resources.

This is universal law, the necessity for working capital. And it applies as rigidly to the individual. Young men, are you saving dollars that later will work for you just as you now work for them?

CHURCH ON BUSINESS BASIS

A skyscraper temple—a church built into a big building that will rent space—will be erected in New York City. The idea is to make the church self-supporting, with a sure and regular income from rents. It is not an absolutely new idea, for many churches have funds invested. But it is an idea worth copying.

Business men, who belong to churches, by contributing their time and ability to similar projects could do a thousand times more for Christianity than by merely dropping money into a collection plate. Some may object to a church having commercial relations. But surely it is better than church poverty or even minor difficulty in making both ends meet. The pity is, that all business is not controlled by the Christian religion.

PUBLIC IS "SQUARE"

Who will pay the cost of broadcasting radio concerts? A Kansas City broadcasting station asked its listeners to buy "seats" in the "invisible theatre." Within 10 days more than $10,000 was received, all voluntary. The station hopes to raise $100,000 and put it on interest to help pay expenses.

The public is almost phenomenally fair and square. Churches that broadcast their services make a mistake in not requesting listeners to help the invisible collection plate.

Two Atlanta (Ga.) men who robbed a chair factory have nothing to do but sit around in jail.

Every now and then some European country says she doesn't want any more wars, but she seldom tries to prove it.

NOW FOR A LITTLE SPRING HOUSE CLEANING

LIMA NEWS HEALTH SERVICE

BY DR. WILLIAM BRADY

Now, then, here's where I lop off some more friends—assuming I have any left—for I am going to tell the truth in the rough, that is unpolished, without varnish, about weak hearts and weak lungs, and a lot of folks who have 'em will find the rough stuff sarcastic.

Succinctly, let us clarify the situation and come to an understanding right here at the outset as to just what we are talking about. If I could make my opponents in the debate on the question of "colds" do that, I'd have 'em paralyzed early in the quarrel. Let me explain, therefore, that apart from organic disease there is no such thing as a weak heart or weak lungs. I hope that is perfectly clear and unmistakable; there are no ifs, and, althos or howevers about it, you will kindly notice. Weak hearts and weak lungs bear a striking resemblance to "colds," "indigestion," "nervous breakdowns."

Having advanced boldly thus far I now do the famous crawfish act. Of course your heart may be a little weaker or stronger than my heart, and both our hearts may be weaker or stronger now than they were last year or will be next year. A heart is a muscle and muscles vary in capacity to do work, according to the training we give them. As I have often tried to point out, the average layman is satisfied to worry along with something like 70 per cent health. At that standard he feels no immediate or urgent need of a doctor and it takes an eloquent plea to persuade him to try the latest panacea for poor blood or bad nerves. Still if nobody hands him a bunch of symptoms he considers himself fairly well, thank you. He can even make a little run for it to catch a train, without getting too alarmingly winded. His general musculature is kinda flabby and soft, and so is his heart, but that's the way he thinks health is. By proper education, particularly intelligent physical training, his health status can be brought up to 90 per cent, provided he harbors no latent or unrecognized disease. In the 90 per cent class the man would not mind a spurt to catch a train, rather he would enjoy such little tests; he would enjoy health in many ways he never dreamed of when he herded with the 70 per centers. As a 90 per cent man he could be better equipped for other little

Dr. Edwards' Olive Tablets Get at the Cause and Remove It

Dr. Edwards' Olive Tablets, the substitute for calomel, act gently on the bowels and positively do the work.

People afflicted with bad breath find quick relief through Dr. Edwards' Olive Tablets. The pleasant, sugar-coated tablets are taken for bad breath by all who know them.

Dr. Edwards' Olive Tablets act gently but firmly on the bowels and liver, stimulating them to natural action, clearing the blood and gently purifying the entire system. They do that which dangerous calomel does without any of the bad after effects.

All the benefits of nasty, sickening, gripping cathartics are derived from Dr. Edwards' Olive Tablets without griping, pain or any disagreeable effects.

Dr. F. M. Edwards discovered the formula after seventeen years of practice among patients afflicted with bowel and liver complaint, with the attendant bad breath.

Olive Tablets are purely a vegetable compound mixed with olive oil; you will know them by their olive color. Take one or two every night for a week and note the effect. 15c and 50c.

Your Spring "House-cleaning"

The body needs a "spring house-cleaning" after the heavy foods of Winter. Give Nature a chance. There are a lot of toxins from undigested food that must be thrown off by the eliminating organs. Help Nature by eating Shredded Wheat and milk with green vegetables and fruit. It means mental buoyancy and physical alertness. Shredded Wheat is all food, easily digested, with just enough bran to insure natural bowel movement.

He is the picture of health.

Sure Way to Get Rid of Dandruff

There is one sure way that never fails to remove dandruff completely and that is to dissolve it. Then you destroy it entirely. To do this, just get about four ounces of plain, ordinary liquid arvon; apply it at night when retiring; use enough to moisten the scalp and rub it in gently with the finger tips. By morning, most, if not all, of your dandruff will be gone, and two or three more applications will completely dissolve and entirely destroy every single sign and trace of it, no matter how much dandruff you may have.

You will find, too, that all itching and digging of the scalp will stop instantly, and your hair will be lustrous, glossy, silky and soft, and has never been known to fall.

You can get liquid arvon at any drug store and four ounces is all you will need. This simple remedy

BEGIN HERE TODAY

Dolly, a girl, is in love with her poor sister, Robert Durham. When Nigel Bretherton, who has money, falls in love with her, Dolly gives up Robert and marries Nigel. The marriage is a disaster. Nigel is a cold, calculating man. He leaves Dolly in the care of his friend, Mary Pumphrey. Mary comes to live in Dolly's flat. Dolly goes for a walk and by accident meets Nigel. He tells her that he has prepared and that now he has plenty of money.

NOW GO ON WITH THE STORY

"I came straight to you. I am afraid you must have thought me unkind—unfeeling, if you saw the letter I wrote. I was sorry as soon as it had gone. I came home earlier than I had really intended in the hope of seeing Nigel before he went to France. If he got my letter—"

"It was sent here; he never saw it."

"I am glad."

The silence fell again; the man's eyes were wandering round the room. It was comfortable and tastefully furnished, but he thought of the Red Grange—its lofty rooms and precious pictures, and thought that his brother must have loved this woman very much to be content.

Mary's eyes followed the decision of his gaze; it had fallen on the little table where lay the few possessions of Nigel's that had been sent home after he died.

He indicated them with a hand that trembled.

"A friend of his sent those back after—afterwards. There is a letter for you amongst them—we have not opened it. It was written the night before he was killed."

Bretherton walked over to the table, and stood looking down at the little collection. They might have belonged to any man—the pipe, the shabby tobacco pouch, the little bundle of letters. David Bretherton put out his hand and picked up a little gold locket lying conspicuously there.

"This was our mother's," he said.

"Yes," said Mary dully. She could remember in happier days when Nigel had worn it from his watch-chain; she had not touched it since it came home—she had not been able to bring herself to move any of the little things since Dolly had put them there.

David was frowning at the little locket; it was flat, and engraved with a woman's monogram.

He touched the little spring, and the case opened.

Mary was watching him listlessly.

CHAPTER VII
The Photograph

After a moment he turned, and looked across at her.

"This is your photograph in here," he said.

She started, a wave of color rushed to her pale face.

"My photograph! Oh, no—"

He came across to where she stood. He held the little trinket to her, open on the palm of his hand.

"I am sure this is your photograph," he said again.

She bent toward him, wholly doubting, then she gave a little stifled cry. Her own face looked back at her in a miniature from the gold case; an old photograph which she had given to Nigel long ago—so long ago that she had forgotten it until this moment, when she saw it so unexpectedly.

David shut the case with a little snap.

"It is yours," he said.

"Yes—I had forgotten. I gave it to him so long ago."

There were tears in her voice, and tears in her heart as she thought of that long ago—before he was married—when she had hoped—when she had believed, that perhaps some day—She checked her thoughts with a bitter sigh. How long had he carried that photograph with him? She was afraid to try and answer the question. She wondered dully if Dolly had seen it, and if so, what she had thought.

David was watching her.

"You have known my brother some time?" he asked.

"Nearly six years."

He turned away. He went back to the little table and laid down the locket gently, as if it were something he were afraid of hurting.

Across the room, Mary was watching him.

He was not in the least like his brother, she told herself achingly; and yet—she was fiercely glad that he was not. She could not have borne it had he looked at her with Nigel's eyes, smiled at her with Nigel's lips.

This man was taller, thinner, more delicate looking; his hair was brown, too. Nigel's had been fair, with a boyish kink in it; this man's was straight. He looked much older than Nigel, more manly, perhaps, more reliable; she realized this vaguely, even while she resented it.

"You will not stay on here, of course," he said after a moment.

Mary started.

"Here! In this flat do you mean?"

"Yes. You are young—you cannot live alone."

"I lived alone till I came here," she half smiled. "I am not very young," she told him, with a touch of whimsicality.

His grave eyes searched her face.

"You cannot live alone—you would mope yourself to death."

She felt the tears rising. She turned her face away.

He came back to the table. "You said that there was a letter—"

"It is with the papers there."

"May I take it?" he asked.

"Please."

She heard the rustling of the scraggy sheets of paper in his hands. It seemed a long time before he spoke again.

"You have not read this?"

"I?" She raised her eyes to him. "Oh, no!"

He made no comment. He put the letter into the breast pocket of his coat.

There was a grim line about his mouth.

She watched him disinterestedly. For the first time she noticed how wet his coat was about the shoulders. She rose hurriedly.

"You are wet thru; please take off your coat. I ought to have asked you before. And can I offer you anything—some coffee, some wine?"

He shook his head. "I had dinner before I came, and I must be getting on. I want to go down home tonight."

Her face lit up sensitively.

"To the Red Grange?"

"Yes. Have you been there?"

"Once."

"It is a fine old place. It has been let since I went abroad, you know, but the lease was up last month. I shall live there myself now."

"Yes." He was buttoning his coat.

"If there is anything I can do for you—" he began hesitatingly. "I hope you will remember that I am Nigel's brother. If you are needing money—"

She looked surprised.

"Thank you, I have all I want. But there is this flat and the furniture; I don't know what to do with it."

He glanced round.

"The best thing would be to sell everything. You had better get right away; there is nothing so painful as memory."

He took her hand. "You must not stay here alone," he said decidedly. "I will think what can be done, and write to you."

CHAPTER VIII
"You Loved Nigel?"

She followed him into the hall, and then, as he stood there in the dim light of the narrow passage, for the first time she could trace a likeness to his dead brother. It was only indefinable—something in the cut of his shoulders, something in the turn of his head; but for a moment she could almost cheat herself into the belief that it was Nigel who stood there.

Blinding tears rushed to her eyes; for a moment she hid her face in her hands.

When she looked up again, David Bretherton was watching her. She began a stumbling apology.

"I am so sorry! But just now you looked so like Nigel—"

She bit her lip; she could not go on.

His grave face softened wonderfully. He laid a gentle hand on her shoulder.

"You loved Nigel?" he said.

She answered him sobbingly:

"Oh, I did—I did!"

Somewhere there seemed no shame in the confession made to this man. Nigel was dead, and the knowledge of her love could not harm him. Even afterwards, when David had gone, she did not regret the little impulsive admission.

CHAPTER IX
The Photograph

When David Bretherton left Mary, he took a taxi and drove straight to an address in Hampstead.

There was a little frown on his face, and during the drive he sat staring before him in thought.

Once he had put up his hand to feel the letter lying in his breast-pocket. Once he took it out and carefully re-read the hastily scribbled pages.

He had not seen Nigel for more than three years, and now that he would never see him again, little memories of their boyhood's days came crowding back to him—of Nigel, always in disgrace for some dare-devil exploit; of Nigel taking his punishment at school with a grin on his good-natured face; of Nigel going for the thing he wanted, always determined to get it at whatever cost. And now a vivid imagination flashed him a picture of Nigel lying dead on the battlefield.

David knew that it was the death Nigel would have chosen for himself. He was so brave, so headlong!

His thoughts went back to Mary.

She was so different from the woman he had pictured as his brother's wife—so much more womanly, so much less like the dolly type of girl that Nigel had always admired.

And she had genuinely loved him; of that there could be no doubt. It therefore made Nigel's last letter all the more extraordinary and difficult to understand.

The taxi had stopped now. The driver came to the door.

"Is this the house, sir?"

An Intimate Story of Inseparable Emotions Revealed in Private Letters

LETTER FROM LESLIE PRESCOTT TO LESLIE PRESCOTT, CARE OF THE SECRET DRAWER

I like to think, little Marquise, that you miss me when I do not often write something and put it in our little secret drawer that you may read it if you wish.

I miss you greatly, little confidante. At least I feel I have not quite solved the great questions that confront me every day until I have mailed them over in my mind and written them down pro and con as the you were going to advise me. Then things straighten out in my mind. After looking facts in the face, I get rid of much superfluous emotion, much self-pity, and come to much more logical and optimistic conclusions. Sometimes indeed I am superstitious enough to feel that perhaps in some occult way you have advised and helped me.

I know it is ridiculous, much of this stuff we read in the magazines and newspapers, where they tell married people how to keep stoking the furnace of conjugal bliss with kind words and sewed-on buttons and breakfast-table smiles and boudoir caps to cover curl papers, and never keeping husbands waiting and all that. The other day I read a really truly honest-to-God dissertation on marriage—on her own marriage, by Louise Closser Hale, who was big enough, brave enough and fine enough to write this paragraph: "Not for an instant have I believed that marriage is a holy alliance. What is so holy, so gasping about it all is the way we poor creatures take on this awkward linking as the sculptor takes rough clay for the making of a group and pours his heart and mind into the modeling of it, grows old with it but goes on with it—goes on with it—until something very beautiful and blended stands for the effort. A successful marriage is a triumphal monument to the powers of endurance."

Sometimes when I sit down to write, knowing that no one will ever read it, I have written—unless you, little Marquise, haunt this secret place where was hidden your own secret love life—I am all unstrung. It seems to me I cannot endure to build the monument any longer.

It seems to me that it is crumbling at my feet. I do not know which way to turn for comfort. But after I have written down not only the facts of my annoyance or unhappiness, but my reactions to the facts and unhappiness, I can always find my way clear to some way smoothing out the rough places on that monument and building it a little higher toward heaven.

It is such silly little things that bring on discouragement. I do not really know why it is that I dislike so much to welcome people that I love before a gaping crowd in a railway station. I have tried to explain this to Jack hundreds of times. I have tried to make him understand that it makes me self-conscious and I find that I am dramatizing myself for the benefit of those who are looking on, or those that I feel are observing me, instead of wholeheartedly being glad he is home again.

But he always forgets this. He always wants me to meet him at the station, for what reason I do not know, for he is always nervous and irritable and he always wants to get to his business. He always makes me feel as tho I were a very small and unimportant part of his life, on this the first moment he sees me after he has been gone from me a long time.

If he would just come in and go immediately to his work, perhaps calling me up to say "Hello!" and then come home at night to a good dinner and a smiling wife and rest, it would simplify matters so much; but I must always meet him in a public place; not because he is so anxious to see me, for after giving my cheek a little peck he always becomes nervously excited and hurried and wants to get rid of me. Naturally he wants to go to his office.

All day, after I received that telegram from him, I kept saying to myself "I will not go to the station," but as usual I ended by going down the next morning early.

Learn how millions get whiter teeth

This offers a delightful test which will bring a new conception of what clean teeth mean.

It means whiter, cleaner, softer teeth, such as millions now enjoy. See what it brings to you.

The war on film

Dental science is now fighting film—the cause of most tooth troubles.

Film is that viscous coat you feel. It clings to teeth. Under old methods of tooth brushing, much of it remains.

It becomes discolored, then forms dingy coats. That is why so many teeth look cloudy.

Film also causes most tooth troubles. It holds food substance which ferments and forms acid. It holds the acid in contact with the teeth to cause decay. Germs breed by millions in it. They, with tartar, are the chief cause of pyorrhea.

These troubles became almost universal when that film was left on teeth.

Modern research has discovered two effective film combatants. One disintegrates the film at all stages of formation. One removes it without harmful scouring.

Tests have proved that these methods mean a new era in teeth.

Protect the Enamel

Pepsodent disintegrates the film, then removes it with an agent far softer than enamel. Never use a film combatant which contains harsh grit.

A single teaspoonful of DR. CALDWELL'S SYRUP PEPsin

Will restore good humor

Mothers!! Apply Common Sense

THIS is the era of the prevention of disease and sensible people do not wait until sickness has actually come before remedying the trouble. The crowded hospitals everywhere are sad examples of the results of neglect. Be especially watchful of children. Restlessness, lack of normal appetite and feverishness usually indicate constipation. Stop it that instant with a spoonful of Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin and you will have prevented real sickness. Mrs. Ida Williamson of 1637 Pine St., Long Beach, Cal. and Mrs. Lou Brawley of Self, Ark., never have illness in the family because of their prompt use of Syrup Pepsin.

A Great Family Laxative

It may be difficult to decide just what medicine to use out of the many that are offered, but it would not be if you knew the facts. There are laxatives, cathartics, purgatives and physics, and they vary in their reaction on the system. Naturally, the stronger the medicine the more it shocks the system, so wise parents never give anything but a laxative to children. Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin is a mild laxative, a vegetable compound of Egyptian seeds with pepsin and desirable aromatics, and so appreciated that it is now the largest selling preparation of its kind in the world, over 10 million bottles being used annually. The formula is on every package.

Three Rules of Health

Purchase a bottle of Syrup Pepsin at a drug store and always keep one in the family medicine chest. Give it to anyone from infant to grandparent, for it is safe, and the cost is less than a cent a dose. You can keep a family healthy with just this simple medicine. Give it for constipation, torpid liver, indigestion, biliousness, headaches, colds and other evidence of bowel obstruction. Dr. Caldwell, who was a practicing physician for 47 years and who originated this formula, had three rules of health that he found very effective among his patients and which you can follow with great benefit: Keep the head cool, the feet warm, and the bowels open.

Covers for seventeen will be marked at the dinner table, laid in the private dining room. Appointments of spring flowers will be used. An informal evening at the Brunk home will be enjoyed following the dinner.

Guests will be Mr. and Mrs. O. C. Ross, Dr. Brunk, Dr. and Mrs. J. H. Steiner, Dr. and Mrs. J. H. Otterson, Mr. and Mrs. M. J. Lynch, Mr. and Mrs. E. L. Kink, Mr. and Mrs. William Lane, Dr. and Mrs. G. H. McCoy, of Delphos and the host and hostess.

Mr. and Mrs. Ross will return to their home this week after spending some time with friends here and in Delphos, their former home.

Mr. and Mrs. Pete Basinger, W. Wayne-st., entertained at a "family dinner" at their home, Easter Sunday, honoring their daughter, Kathleen, on her 14 birthday anniversary. The table appointments were of lavender and yellow.

Covers were laid for Mr. and Mrs. W. J. Richmond, Mr. and Mrs. Raymond Pangle and daughter, Mildred, Mr. and Mrs. J. M. Pangle, Mr. and Mrs. Harry Robinson and son, Harry, Jr., Mr. and Mrs. Howard Pangle and daughter, Beatrice, Mr. M. U. Basinger, Warren Basinger, Miss Ella Basinger, Calvin Basinger, Miss May Sweet, Miss Hordle Camp and Miss Frances Richmond.

Members of the American Legion Auxiliary will meet in the Legion rooms Monday evening at 7:30 o'clock. Mrs. M. G. McGinnis will preside.

SUSIE SMART'S ADVICE

Dear Miss Smart: I am a steady reader of your column and wish you would give me some advice. I am a girl 16 years old. Am I too young to go with the fellows? I am looking for a boy to play with the boys and girls.

There would be no harm in my going with the young boys, occasionally, that is, if your mother does not object. Ten o'clock is quite late.

What does Brown Eyed Bunk mean? Light? Dorothy means gift of God; Anna means gift; Albert means nobly bright; Henry means chief of a house; and Gail means bright spirited.

That would be quite a task and especially, "Brown Eyed Bunk," when I don't know who your favorites are. Write me who you particularly like in the "movies" and I would be glad to let you know whether they are single or not and give you their address.

Not very good for a girl 16 years of age, my dear. You write a large, "scrawly" hand, like a child.

Dear Miss Smart: Please answer the following questions for me: In what part of Michigan can a girl get married at 17 years of age, without her parents' consent? If a girl should get married and was not yet 16 years old, would she be compelled to attend school?

What colors are appropriate for a married in? How soon will gingham dresses be worn?

At no place in Michigan can a girl be married, without her parents' consent, until she is 18 years of age.

There are few colors more appropriate than others. For a large church wedding, white is always worn. For a home wedding, afternoon dresses of becoming shade, usually light, is also. It is perfectly proper to be married in a tailored suit or a tailored dress. It is merely a matter of personal taste. Gingham dresses will be worn just as soon as the warm spring and summer days arrive.

SUSIE SMART: Dear Miss Smart: Will you please answer these few questions for me? What is a good remedy for neckles and sunburn? Also, do you know of a good exercise to tone the abdomen?

Prepare this mixture: Buttermilk, or sour milk, 2 oz.; grated horseradish, 2 oz.; corn meal, 6 dr. Spread this between thin muslin and allow it to lie on the affected parts as long as possible at night, are being used to keep it away from the eye. Then, too, a simple remedy is to use a hot water compress to a face black. If any sunburn follows this treatment, a little warm bone acid and glycerine should be applied.

A popular formula for sunburn is equal parts of linseed oil and lime water. It takes the sting out of sunburn immediately, and will prevent burn, if applied before going to the beach or out in the bright and hot sun.

No, I do not consult a physician. Dear Miss Smart: How can I remove a sewing machine oil stain from a silk dress? How can I clean a gray silk glove stained with chocolate candy?

Use powdered chalk (which you can get at a drugstore) on the oil spot. Leave for an hour or more, then brush out the chalk. More than one application may be necessary.

I would advise sending the gloves to a professional cleaner.

Mrs. Sidney Courtad, S. Elizabeth-st., will be hostess to the members of the Merry Mothers club at her home, Wednesday evening.

GOOD MANNERS

When a lady meets a gentleman acquaintance, by accident, on a train, she should not expect him to tip the porter for carrying her grip, when their destination is reached.

A wedding of Easter Sunday was that of Miss Mildred Raley, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. John Raley, and William Johns, which took place at high noon at the Immanuel Evangelical Lutheran church, with Rev. Carl Troutman the officiating clergyman. The wedding party, consisted of Miss Anna Raley and Miss Anna Gronas, flower girls, Miss Mary Unskey, maid of honor, and Miss Marie Sullivan, bridesmaid and John Grumbis and Frank Yonkuski, attendants of the groom, advanced to the altar to the strains of wedding music played by Miss Lucretia Greenbaum at the organ.

The bride wore a gown of white georgette and a white tulle veil, trimmed with orange blossoms. She wore a strand of pearls, the gift of the bridegroom. The maid of honor wore a gown of white silk with lace panels. Each of the bride's attendants carried arm bouquets of pink roses and the bride's bouquet was of bride's roses and valley lilacs.

Following the marriage, a wedding dinner was served at the home of the bride's sister and brother-in-law, Mr. and Mrs. George Hallena, 1229 S. Union-st. An informal reception was held during the afternoon and in the evening, a group of intimate friends were invited to spend the evening.

At the bride and groom are now American citizens, they are natives of Czechoslovakia, and the wedding festivities were much like those of that country. Folk songs were sung by a group of the bride's friends. A several course supper was served.

Guests were Mr. and Mrs. John Raley and son, John, Jr., Mr. and Mrs. John Hallena and daughter, Mary, Mr. and Mrs. Charles Groman and son, Kalman, Mr. and Mrs. Peter Gohish, Mr. and Mrs. Emil Matin, Mrs. E. Women to attract must Radiate Health!

BEAUTY is the magnet which draws all eyes—and back of beauty—Health—working silently—Red blood tingling through the veins—the glow of youth in the cheeks—the spring of eagerness, of vim, of vitality in the walk—the ever graceful air, unrestrained by care or worry. All the charms of beauty.

Men are fascinated by the charms of beauty. Women gaze with envy, secretly jealous, perhaps—wondering—hoping—praying for that attractiveness that is not theirs.

But why the wondering—the hoping—the praying for that coveted attractiveness—that beauty. Good looks is the barometer of one's condition. Good health radiates beauty.

S. S. S. purifies the blood—creates new red blood cells—rids the system of impurities which make beauty and attractiveness impossible. As women attract more beauty, so must they keep their systems free from impurities and their red blood cells increasing. S. S. S. does both.

S. S. S., since 1826, has been ridding the system of impurities—pimples, blackheads, boils, eczema and rheumatism—building red blood cells—aiding women to be attractive by radiating health. S. S. S. is made of carefully selected herbs and barks, scientifically prepared and proportioned. All good drug stores carry S. S. S. It is more economical to purchase the large size bottle.

S.S.S. Makes You Feel Like Yourself Again

STOP ITCHING ECZEMA
Penetrating, Antiseptic Zemo Will Help You

Never mind how often you have tried and failed, you can stop burning, itching Eczema quickly by applying Zemo furnished by any drugstore for 35c. Extra large bottle, $1.00. Healing begins the moment Zemo is applied. In a short time usually every trace of Eczema, Tetter, Pimples, Rash, Blackheads and similar skin diseases will be removed.

For clearing the skin and making it vigorously healthy, always use Zemo, the penetrating, antiseptic liquid. When others fail, it is the one dependable treatment for skin troubles of all kinds. Zemo 50c. 25c—Zemo Ointment, 50c.

SLUGGISH LIVER DURING SPRING CAUSES POISON!

HIS BROTHER'S WIFE

RUDY AYRES
• LIMA SERVICE

BEGIN HERE TODAY
Dolly, a girl, is in love with her poor sister, Robert Durham. When Nigel Bretherton, who has money, falls in love with her, Dolly gives up Robert and marries Nigel. The marriage is a success. Nigel is a very rich man. He leaves Dolly in the care of his friend, Mary Fitzgerald. Mary comes to live in Dolly's flat. Dolly goes for a walk and sees a man who looks like Robert. He tells her that he has prospered and that now he has plenty of money. He asks her to marry him. Dolly has been killed in action. Dolly marries Robert in London and calls with him to America. Nigel's older brother, David, calls to see Nigel's widow. She married him for his money.

NOW GO ON WITH THE STORY
"I came straight to you. I am afraid you must have thought me unkind—unbelieving, if you saw the letter I wrote. I was sorry as soon as it had gone. I came home earlier than I had really intended in the hope of seeing Nigel before he went to France. If he got my letter—"
"It was sent here; he never saw it."

"The silence fell again; the man's eyes were wandering round the room. It was comfortable and tastefully furnished, but he thought of the Red Grange—its lofty rooms, and priceless pictures, and thought that his brother must have loved this woman very much to be content."
Mary's eyes followed the direction of his gaze; it had fallen on the little table where lay the few possessions of Nigel that had been sent home after he died.

She indicated them with a hand that trembled.
"A friend of his sent those back after—afterwards. There is a letter for you amongst them—we have not opened it. It was written the night before he was killed."

Bretherton walked over to the table, and stood looking down at the little collection. They might have belonged to any man—the pipe, the shabby tobacco pouch, the little bundle of letters. David Bretherton put out his hand and picked up a little gold locket lying conspicuously there.

"This was our mother's," he said.
"Yes," said Mary dully. She could remember in happier days when Nigel had worn it from his watch-chain; she had not touched it since it came home—she had not been able to bring herself to move any of the little things since Dolly had put them there.

David was fingering the little locket; it was fat, and engraved with a worn monogram.
He touched the little spring, and the case opened.

Mary was watching him listlessly.
CHAPTER VII
The Photograph

After a moment he turned, and looked across at her.
"This is your photograph in here," he said.

She started, a wave of color rushed to her pale face.
"My photograph! Oh, no—"

He came across to where she stood. He held the little trinket to her, open on the palm of his hand.
"I am sure this is your photograph," he said again.

She bent toward him, wholly doubting, then she gave a little stifled cry. Her own face looked back at her in a miniature from the gold case; an old photograph which she had given to Nigel long ago—so long ago that she had forgotten it until this moment, when she saw it so unexpectedly.

David shut the case with a little snap.
"It is yours," he said.
"Yes—I had forgotten. I gave it to him so long ago."

There were tears in her voice, and tears in her heart as she thought of that long ago—before he was married—when she had hoped—when she had believed, that perhaps some day—She checked her thoughts with a bitter sigh. How long had she carried that photograph with him? She was afraid to try and answer the question. She wondered dully if Dolly had seen it, and if so, what she had thought.

David was watching her.
"You have known my brother some time?" he asked.
"Nearly six years."

He turned away. He went back to the little table and laid down the locket gently, as if it were something he were afraid of hurting.

Across the room Mary watched him.
He was not in the least like his brother, she told herself absently; and yet—she was fiercely glad that he was not. She could not have borne it had he looked at her with Nigel's eyes, smiled at her with Nigel's lips.

This man was taller, thinner, more delicate looking; his hair was brown, too. Nigel's had been fair, with a boyish tinge in it; this man's was straight. He looked much older than Nigel, more manly, perhaps, more reliable; she realized this vaguely, even while she resented it.

"You will not stay on here, of course," he said after a moment.
Mary started.
"Here! In this flat do you mean?"

"Yes. You are young—you cannot live alone."
"I lived alone till I came here," she half smiled. "I am not very young," she told him, with a touch of whimsicality.

His grave eyes searched her face.
"You cannot live alone—you would mope yourself to death."
She felt the tears rising. She turned her face away.

He came back to the table. "You said that there was a letter from Nigel."
"It is with the papers there."

"May I take it?" he asked.
"Please."

She heard the rustling of the scrappy sheets of paper in his hands. It seemed a long time before he spoke again.
"You have not read this?"

"I?" She raised her eyes to him. "Oh, no!"
He made no comment. He put the letter into the breast pocket of his coat. There was a grim line about his mouth.

She watched him disinterestedly. For the first time she noticed how wet his coat was about the shoulders. She rose hurriedly.
"You are wet thru; please take off your coat. I ought to have asked you before. And can't I offer you anything—some coffee, some wine?"

He shook his head. "I had dinner before I came, and I must be getting on. I want to go down home tonight."
Her face lit up sensitively.

"To the Red Grange?"
"Yes. Have you been there?"
"Once."

"It is a fine old place. It has been let since I went abroad, you know, but the lease was up last month. I shall live there myself now."
"Yes." He was buttoning his coat.

"If there is anything I can do for you—" he began hesitatingly. "I hope you will remember that I am Nigel's brother. If you are needing money—"

She looked surprised.
"Thank you; I have all I want. But there is this flat and the furniture; I don't know what to do with it."

He glanced round.
"The best thing would be to sell everything. You had better get right away; there is nothing so painful as memory."

He took her hand. "You must stay here alone," he said decidedly. "I will think what can be done, and write to you."

CHAPTER VIII
"You Loved Nigel?"

She followed him into the hall, and then, as he stood there in the dim light of the narrow passage, for the first time she could trace a likeness to his dead brother. It was only indefinable—something in the cut of his shoulders, something in the turn of his head; but for a moment she could almost cheat herself into the belief that it was Nigel who stood there.

Blinding tears rushed to her eyes; for a moment she hid her face in her hands.
When she looked up again, David Bretherton was watching her. She began a stumbling apology.

"I am so sorry! But just now you looked so like Nigel—"

She bit her lip; she could not go on.
His grave face softened wonderfully. He laid a gentle hand on her shoulder.

"You loved Nigel?" he said.
She answered him sobbingly:
"Oh, I did—I did!"

Somehow there seemed no shame in the confession made to this man. Nigel was dead, and the knowledge of her love could not harm him. Even afterwards, when David had gone, she did not regret the little impulsive admission.

CHAPTER IX
The Photograph

When David Bretherton left Mary, he took a taxi and drove straight to a address in Hampstead.

An Intimate Story of Insurgent Emotions Revealed in Private Letters

LETTER FROM LESLIE PRESCOTT, CUTE TO LESLIE PRESCOTT, CARE OF THE SECRET DRAWER

I like to think, little Marquise, that you miss me when I do not often write something and put it in our little secret drawer that you may read if you wish.

I miss you greatly, little confidante. At least I feel I have not quite solved the great questions that confront me every day until I have written them over in my mind and written them down pro and con as the you were going to advise me. Then things straighten out in my mind. After looking facts in the face, I get rid of much superfluous emotion, much self-pity, and come to much more logical and optimistic conclusions. Sometimes indeed I am superstitious enough to feel that perhaps in some occult way you have advised and helped me.

I know it is ridiculous, much of this stuff we read in the magazines and newspapers, where they tell married people how to keep stoking the furnace of conjugal bliss with kind words and sewed-on buttons and breakfast-table amities and bou-doir caps to cover curl papers, and never keeping husbands waiting and all that. The other day I read a really truly honest-to-God dissertation on marriage—on her own marriage by Louise Closser Hale, who was big enough, brave enough and fine enough to write this paragraph: "Not for an instant have I believed that marriage is a holy alliance. What is so holy, so inspiring about it all is the way we poor creatures take on the awkward linking as the sculptor takes rough clay for the making of a group and pour his heart and mind into the modeling of it, grows old with it but goes on with it—goes on with it—until something very beautiful and blended stands for the effort. A successful marriage is a triumphal monument to the powers of endurance."

Sometimes when I sit down to write, knowing that no one will even read what I have written—unless you, little Marquise, haunt this secret place where was hidden your own secret love life—I am all unstrung. It seems to me I cannot endure to build the monument any longer.

It seems to me that it is crumbling at my feet. I do not know which way to turn for comfort. But after I have written down not only the facts of my annoyance or unhappiness, but my reactions to the facts and my way clear to some way smoothing out the rough places on that monument and building it a little higher toward heaven.

It is such silly little things that bring on discouragement. I do not really know why it is that I dislike so much to welcome people that I love before a zapping crowd in a railway station. I have tried to explain this to Jack hundreds of times. I have tried to make him understand that it makes me self-conscious and I find that I am dramatizing myself for the benefit of those who are looking on, or those that I feel are observing me. Instead of wholeheartedly being glad he is home again.

But he always forgets this. He always wants me to meet him at the station, for what reason I do not know, for he is always nervous and irritable and he always wants to get to his business. He always makes me feel as tho I were a very small and unimportant part of his life, on this the first moment he sees me after he has been gone from me a long time.
If he would just come in and go immediately to his work, perhaps calling me up to say "Hello!" and then come home at night to a good dinner and a smiling wife and run, it would simplify matters so much, but I guess that is not to be.
So I must always meet him in a public place; not because he is so anxious to see me, for after giving my cheek a little peck he always becomes nervously excited and hurried and wants to get rid of me. Naturally he wants to go to his office.
Ah day, after I received that telegram from him, I kept saying to myself "I will not go to the station," but as usual I ended by going down the next morning early.

TOMORROW: More of the letter from Leslie Prescott to Leslie Prescott, care of the secret drawer.

Learn how millions get whiter teeth

This offers a delightful test which will bring a new conception of what clean teeth mean. It means whiter, cleaner, after teeth, such as millions now enjoy. See what it brings to you.

The war on film
Dental science is now fighting film—the cause of most tooth troubles.

Film is that viscous coat you feel. It clings to teeth. Under old methods of tooth brushing, much of it remains.

It becomes discolored, then forms dingy coats. That is why so many teeth look cloudy.

Film also causes most tooth troubles. It holds food substance which ferments and forms acid. It holds the acid in contact with the teeth to cause decay. Germs breed by millions in it. They, with tartar, are the chief cause of pyorrhea.

These troubles became almost universal when that film was left on teeth.

Modern research has discovered two effective film combatants. One disintegrates the film at all stages of formation. One removes it without harmful scouring.

Tests have proved that these methods mean a new era in teeth cleaning. A new-type tooth paste has been created to apply them daily. The name is Pepsodent.

Now the use of Pepsodent has spread the world over, largely by dental advice.

Look at what Pepsodent does
The use of Pepsodent will bring at once a new conception of clean teeth.

It does more than fight film. It multiplies the alkalinity of the saliva, which is there to neutralize mouth acids. It multiplies the pepsin in saliva, which is there to digest starch deposits on teeth.

These combined effects will be a revelation to you. Send the coupon for a 10-Day Tube. Note how clean the teeth feel after using. Mark the absence of the viscous film. See how teeth become whiter as the film-coats disappear.

Compare the new way with the old, then decide for yourself what is best. Cut out coupon now.

Protect the Enamel
Pepsodent disintegrates the film, then removes it with an agent far softer than enamel. Never use a film combatant which contains harsh grit.

Mothers!! Apply Common Sense

THIS is the era of the prevention of disease and sensible people do not wait until sickness has usually come before remedying the trouble. The crowded hospitals everywhere are sad examples of the results of neglect. Be especially watchful of children. Restlessness, lack of normal appetite and feverishness usually indicate constipation. Stop it that instant with a spoonful of Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin and you will have prevented real sickness. Mrs. Ida Williamson, of 1637 Pine St., Long Beach, Cal., and Mrs. Lou Brawley of Self, Ark., never have illness in the family because of their prompt use of Syrup Pepsin.

A Great Family Laxative
It may be difficult to decide just what medicine to use out of the many that are offered, but it would not be if you knew the facts. There are laxatives, cathartics, purgatives and physics, and they vary in their reaction on the system. Naturally, the stronger the medicine the more it shocks the system, so wise parents never give anything but a laxative to children. Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin is a mild laxative, a vegetable compound of Egyptian sonna with pepsin and desirable aromatics, and so appreciated that it is now the largest selling preparation of its kind in the world, over 10 million bottles being used annually. The formula is on every package.

Three Rules of Health
Purchase a bottle of Syrup Pepsin at a drug store and always keep one in the family medicine chest. Give it to anyone from infant to grandparent, for it is safe, and the cost is less than a cent a dose. You can keep a family healthy with just this simple medicine. Give it for constipation, torpid liver, indigestion, biliousness, headaches, colds and other evidence of bowel obstruction. Dr. Caldwell, who was a practicing physician for 47 years and who originated this formula, had three rules of health that he found very effective among his patients and which you can follow with great benefit: Keep the head cool, the feet warm, and the bowels open.

Send me a free trial bottle to prove what you say about Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin by actual test. Send me a free trial bottle. Address to

GENERAL LIST OF STOCKS DOWN

Decline is Brought About by Selling Pressure

RAILWAY SHARES STRONG

Gains in Few Other Issues Are Also Scored

LIBERTY BONDS

NEW YORK—(Associated Press)—Selling pressure again cropped out at the opening of today's stock market, giving the general list a reactionary tone. New 1934 lows were established by Yellow Cab, Chicago Yellow Cab and Cuyamel Fruit, of 1 to 2 points. Dupont and Baldwin each yielded about a point and the steel recorded fractional losses. International Telephone advanced a point.

Sale of a block of 13,000 shares of Conducatum at the "spread opening" price of $49 to $55 a share, as against $52 1/2. Saturday's closing was the feature of the day's trading. The stock rallied later to 42. The general list continued reactionary, losses of 1 to 2 1/2 points being recorded by more than a score of issues, including Schulte Stores, American Tobacco B, Coca Cola, Stewart-Warner, Cuba Cane, preferred, General Asphalt and Crude Oil. Several new lows were recorded in the oil group, including Producers and Refiners, Marland, Pacific and Standard Oil of California. Foreign exchanges opened steady.

All the main price movement continued downward through the morning with selling pressure most effective in the oil, sugars, textiles, chemicals and leather, the net loss ranging from 1 to 5 points. Additional new lows were established by Atlantic Refining, American Hide and Leather preferred, American Woolen, American Sugar Refining, Cosden and General Petroleum. Eastman Kodak dropped a point in reflection of the order of the federal trade commission charging monopoly and unfair competition in the film industry. The rails showed independent strength, gains of 1 to nearly 2 points being recorded by Canadian Pacific, Southern Pacific and Chesapeake and Ohio. Other strong stocks were U. S. Cast Iron Pipe, Beechnut Packing and Colorado Fuel, up 1 1/2 to 2 1/4 points. Call money opened at 4 per cent.

COURT ISSUES ORDER FOR FEDERAL COURT PAPERS IN KAUFMAN LIQUOR HEARING

Ruling obtained Monday from federal internal revenue department that no papers or records in the Kaufman case will be sent here until requested from the court, after a decision in the case is reached by the court on the Joe Kaufman liquor case.

Decision in the case was held up by Judge J. Hamilton, following a warning to allow Kaufman to present papers from the internal revenue bureau showing whisky found in the Japco Stove works was registered.

An order has been issued by the court requesting that the papers be sent here as evidence.

Section 2. That there be levied and assessed upon the lots and lands hereinafter described the costs and expenses of said improvement by lighting said streets, except fifteen per cent, (15%) of such costs of such lighting.

Section 3. That the following lots and lands bounding and abutting upon said streets, as set forth in Section 1 herein, shall be assessed for said improvements as above determined, to wit: All the lots and lands bounding and abutting upon said portion of said streets as set forth in Section 1 herein, which said lots and lands are hereby determined to be specially benefited by the said proposed improvement all in proportion, as near as they may be that the special benefits to each of the several above described pieces of property bear to the whole special benefits conferred by said improvements as shall be fixed by three (3) disinterested free-holders of the Corporation, and confirmed by this Commission.

Section 4. That the assessments so to be levied as herein provided for upon the said property shall be paid by the owners thereof in such number of installments and at such times as shall be necessary to meet and pay the notes or bonds that shall be hereafter issued in anticipation of the levy or collection of such assessments, provided however that the owners of any property may pay such assessments in cash within thirty (30) days after the passage of the assessing ordinance as provided by law.

Section 5. That bonds or notes of the City of Lima, Ohio, shall be issued in anticipation of the levy and collection of said assessments.

Section 6. That the City Manager be, and he hereby is authorized and directed to provide lighting for all the streets herein provided for, in accordance with the ordinances of the City of Lima, Ohio.

Section 7. That this ordinance shall be in full force and effect from and after the earliest period allowed by law.

E. C. MOYER,
President of the Commission.
Passed April 7, 1924.
Attest: F. H. Hume, Clerk.

Who has to get up to start your kitchen fire?

A STOVE you have to shake is as old-fashioned as a car you have to crank. The work and the waiting to get a fire ready for business are work and time wasted.

You can quickly prove these facts to your own satisfaction by visiting a nearby store where the Florence Oil Range is sold. This modern stove speeds up kitchen work and takes much of the drudgery out of housework.

Here is how it works
Just touch a match to the Asbestos Kindler. In a few moments there is an intensely hot blue flame close up under the cooking. A turn of the lever regulates the heat to any degree. You can cook every dish on a Florence, from soup to dessert, quickly and well.

The vapor from kerosene is what burns. It is a gas flame, not a wick flame such as you see in the ordinary oil lamp. Kerosene is a cheap and plentiful fuel. The Florence not only is a great convenience, but it cuts fuel bills sharply. You use it only when actually cooking. And it means a cooler, cleaner kitchen.

A sturdy beauty

Notice the quality of the enamel in a Florence Range. Observe that the oil reservoir is light but very durable. If you want an oven, see how the Florence is modeled on the old Dutch oven, and with our patented heat distributor assures even cooking.

There are refinements about the Florence that will appeal to you the minute you see them. Just look in at a store and convince yourself.

Florence products are sold by live hardware, department, and furniture stores.
